The system of Government accepting moneys from private individuals at 5 per cent interest for the maintenance of religious and charitable institution which was discontinued soon after the demise of H.H. the late Maharaja, has not yet been revived The ~~revival~~ revival of the system appears to deserve favourable consideration, but pending the consideration of that question, the Deputy Commissioner may, it is submitted, be informed that any

Memo

The Government will by accepting deposits on the proposed terms be placing itself under a permanent obligation of paying annual interest for the benefit of the charity founded by the donor. It is a question whether it is desirable to create a permanent charge on the Revenue of the State seeing that the Durbar is already spending 3,28000 ₹ on account of charitable Institutions. There is much force in stating that a donor should make needful arrangements to ensure the permanency of his charity by investing the amount he wants to set apart in landed property. But experience has shewn us that this kind of investment has not been working satisfactorily. ~~He has therefore to pay the interest on the amount invested by him but the interest derived therefrom is small and therefore insufficient to meet the charges connected with the charities.~~ The Durbar made a biginning by encouraging people inclined to be charitable to deposit any amount up to a maximum of ₹1,00000 with Govt. at 5% interest. This liberal offer was taken advantage of by a few but this policy of Govt. had, on administrative grounds, to be held in abeyance during the minor of His Hihgness the Maharajah. Applications are now made to revive the former mer order of Govt. India is known as a "Land of charities" and I fail to see why a Native State such as ours should not encourage the furtherance of charit by giving every facility to private persons. Of late, owing to various reasons people have not come forward cash or other property on charity. This may be attributed partly to the poverty of the people and partly for want of safe investmentof funds. Such investment do exist as for instance the Govt of India Pro. Notes, but the interest accrueing therefrom is barely sufficient to meet the cost of maintaining the charity. It therefore behoves the Durbar that every reasonable encouragement should be give to private individuals in this directi

The only possible objection that may be raised against this point is whether the Govt. is not unnecessarily rendering itself to lie under a perpetual obligation by accepting money at a higher rate of interest. This is indeed true; but does not Govt. of its own accord spend annually about three and a quarter lacsfor charitable institutions?. When its subjects come forward to its help in a substantial and tangible manner, should not an additional expenditure in the shape of interest be cheerfully borne by Government. Viewing the question from an economical standpoint I may safely state that investments of this kind cannot be regard ed as a debt as there will be no demand for the return of the Capital. Funds invested by private persons will be merged in the General Revenue of the State and will be available for investment by Govt. on remunerative works such as tanks railways &. By accepting this kind of investment at 5% we will be serving a double object Viz of extending our remunerative Public Works and of encourag ing and perpetuating private charities, the excess in interest if any being regarded as a sort of Grant-in-aid towards the charity which the donor wishes to establish. I am therefore inclined to think that the order of 1892 may with advantage be revived.

that deserved encouragement, is amply sufficient, I think, to guard against the imposing of needless burdens on the State revenues. The question may, however, be referred unofficially to the Comptroller for his opinion before any further action is taken.

ant condition of grants from Public Revenues is that the service must be a public service. In deciding the question as to whether a service is bona fide public service or not, the first point to be considered is whether it is a general service or a local service, in other words whether it is a service in which the whole body of Tax payers is represented by Govt is interested or it is merely of local interest. The second point to be considered is whether the service can be undertaken at the cost of the Public Revenues without any violation of the principle or policy of which Government moves as custodian.

There can be no doubt that Thus private charities are of Local interest and thus fall Revenues can not be diverted towards their maintenance. Government can do it, in the Education department, Public Health department, the maintenance of roads etc. but that is an unsound principle for Local or State grants for certain from the nature of the case, be made absolutely strict.

There maybe cases in which a local charity started as a purely local matter becomes after wards a subject of general contribution. This happens when the local institution supplies wants which would in ordinary course be paid for from General Revenues. But here the contribution from the state funds is given as purely different considerations and there is no justification for a special rate of interest being given to subjects at the time when the charity is started.

The Councillor has said that India is "a land of charities" and therefore a Native State ought to encourage the further growth of charities. I venture to submit that here the functions of the state & the people are quite well defined. Although the Councillor is correct in saying that investments of the kind are not debts in the true sense of the word, I must respectfully explain that they must be treated as a debit or deficit in the accounts as otherwise the Post Administration would make a profit at the cost of a future one.

On the whole, therefore, I do not think Govt should ask for the particulars of individual cases but should merely accept the total and announce the acceptance in the Gazette. As I have explained, this is really the best information Govt can get of a private character and in considering the subject must bear in mind a considerable amount of indirect expenditure for the account of investments in making enquiries as to the [illegible]

I am not convinced by the arguments of the comptroller so as to change my opinion already recorded. Sums of Rupees are received by the Govt in the Savings Bank and interest at the rate of 3½ per cent is paid to the depositors for the amount that must lie idle in the treasury to meet the calls of depositors; whereas moneys paid by such individuals upon charitable purposes are not at all to encourage charity. Govt. have already laid down a policy of which a few stark advantages are I feel to see any valid grounds to change that policy now: even the reduction of the rate of interest does not recommend itself to me as it would place moneys paid upon similar purposes here on different footing & a discrepancy not very easy

III. Subject--(Clause VIII of the Scheme)

Whether the System of Government receiving Deposits of moneys from private individuals on favourable rates of interest for the benefit of the charities they establish, may be revived, and if so, at what rate interest should be paid on such deposits.

(Opinions of the Dewan and Councillors)

The System which had been held in abeyance by Government Order No C 16-24 dated the 14th March 1895, may be revived, and Deposits received in accordance with the rules laid down in Govt: Order No 492-500/22 (Muzaraje) dated 9th Aug: 1892 the minimum deposit being raised from three to five thousand rupees and the rate of interest reduced from 5 to 4 per cent per annum.

(Signed) P. N Krishna Murthi
Dewan of Mysore

12/3/06

Submitted to His Highness.

The Notes in this case contain a discussion of the question as to how far the State is justified in receiving deposits of moneys from private individuals on favorable rates of interest for the benefit of public charities.

2. The question is not new. In 1892, a system was established and it worked popularly till 1895, when owing to the special form of administration that was devised for Mysore, the sytem was ordered to be held in abeyance. The reason which necessitated the suspension of this system having ceased to exist on the 8th August 1902, the system itself, legally speaking, should be held to have revived then.

3. Before formally recognizing the revival of the system, it was thought expedient to examine its details once more. The Comptroller is not in favor of paying any interest on deposits of this kind.

4. The Government have the power to decide in each case whether a scheme of charity proposed is purely local and whether it is not such as to deserve the concession of a favorable rate of interest. The misapplication of the rules to schemes of purely local charity, which the Comptroller apprehends, is, therefore, hardly possible.

5. It is obvious that unless the Government undertake to pay interest, cash deposits are not feasible. The sense of security which this system invariably produces and the ease with which the transaction can be conducted go far in the way of stimulating charities that can promote the well-being of the State in several ways.

6. To ensure to the bona fide nature of a charitable scheme and to impart to it provincial character as opposed to local, the rate of interest is proposed to be reduced from 5 to 4 per cent, and the minimum deposit to be raised from 3,000 to 5,000 Rupees.

7. The following applications for deposits of money for charitable purposes are pending:-

(1) ₹30,000 by Mr. Venkatappa for the maintenance of a Chattram and other charities.

(2) ₹30,000 by Mr. Doddanna in connection with his school.

(3) ₹10,000 by Mr. Dyavappa of the Shimoga District for the maintenance of a Chattram and temple.

Under file II ✓ (4) ₹ 10,000 by Mr. Seshiengar of the Kadur District for the maintenance of a Chattram.

Sir,

I have the honor to forward herewith for favorable orders of Government, application dated 9th March 1906, from Dharma Pravartha Gubbi Dodappa of Bangalore city, praying as a special case the sanction of Government for payment of interest at 5% on Rs. 75,000 which he proposes to endow towards the maintenance and upkeep of the Chattram built by him near the City Railway Station. It is needless for me to say that the chattram is undoubtedly an ornamental edifice constructed at a considerable cost. I have personally inspected the Institution and feel glad to say that the arrangements made therein are really very appreciable. Its proximity to the City Railway station affords admirable convenience to the travelling public, more especially to Railway passengers who break journey for their meals, rest, &c. It is charitable disposition in the matter of the support proposed to be offered to the students of the Lingayat community towards their education is a laudable object and really means a considerable cost. It is satisfactory to note that Mr. Totappa has rendered the Institution useful in various ways. A good establishment is no doubt necessary to keep the Chattram buildings and its Compound neat and tidy. It is also a matter of consideration that Mr. Sotadappa is enjoined to keep it thoroughly sanitary and clean owing to its nearness to the Railway station premises. Under the circumstances, I would strongly recommend that Government may be pleased to accord sanction for the payment, as a special case, of interest at 5% on the endowment of Rs. 75,000/- which Mr. Gubbi Sotadappa is about to make.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedt. servant,
H. Thurston Chelly
for Dy. Commissioner.
